Chatham University

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION:

This workshop will explore the developmentally sensitive use of ACCEPTANCE AND COMMITMENT THERAPY (ACT) with children, adolescents and their parents. The presentation will provide an overview of the expanded version of Applied Behavior Analysis (ABA) known as Contextual Behavioral Science (CBS), and will introduce Relational Frame Theory (RFT), the behavior analytic theory of language and cognition upon which ACT is based. The program then will address how to “set the stage” for contextual behavioral ACT work with youngsters and parents, including functional assessment, case conceptualization, treatment planning, and applying the six core ACT processes in creative and flexible ways. Participants will be given numerous opportunities to engage in exercises and role plays in which to practice the principles taught. In addition to the workshop’s didactic content, clinical examples will be used to illustrate therapeutic techniques.

TARGET AUDIENCE:

Psychologists, therapists, counselors, psychiatrists, MDs, nurses, mental health professionals, coaches, dieticians, guidance counselors, teachers and students in related fields.

EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVES: Upon attendance, learners will be able to:

- Describe three distinguishing characteristics of Contextual Behavior Science (CBS), the larger scientific frame work encompassing ACT and RFT.
- Specify the six core ACT processes that underlie psychological flexibility.
- Explain functional analysis (“towards” and “away”) using the ACT Matrix.
- Discuss two experiential ACT exercises, adjusted for the developmental context (child, adolescent, parent or staff in a school or clinical setting).
